In the case of emergencies, participants can miss 2 training days, which they may recuperate at home. This is only if these 2 days do not include Curriculum Days 3, 6 or 7 of the Physical Body. If one of these key days is missed, they must be recuperated in another teacher training. Participants recuperating missed course time at home will be set Self-Study Assignments and personal practice relevant to the course material. This will then be submitted as an extra certification requirement. If more than 2 days are missed, these will need to be recouped by attending another teacher training elsewhere and/or at another time.

In order to be admitted to the final practical exam, participants can miss a total of only 4 training days. Otherwise they will not have the necessary experience. These will need to be recuperated as above.

Certificates will not be issued until all modules have been recouped - even if the exam has been passed.

Regulation for Recuperation of Missed Modules

A participant is entitled to attend any missed modules at any future Shakti Dance® Level 1 Teacher Training, providing they can follow the language (or provided translation) in which it is taught.

A student, having paid the full costs to their original Shakti Dance® Level 1 Teacher Training Program, may then recuperate up to 6 days of missed modules at another training, contributing only 25 Euros per day to the host training program to cover organisation and seminar-room rental costs.

If the student needs to recuperate more than 6 days in a different training, then they will need to pay the full daily tuition costs of the of host training program to that host program for all the days they attend that exceed 6 days.

Any further travel or accommodation costs will also need to be paid for by the participant.

Generally, the Shakti Dance® Level 1 Teacher Training and certification should be completed within six months after the practical exam of the original training.

However, participants may ask in writing for an extension of time to the Organiser of their original training and the SD Academy Secretary. This time period can be extended for as long as is necessary, but the Academy does not take responsibility for following up on the student's progress.

If the agreed extended time limit is exceeded without further written notification on the part of the student, then the student will no longer be eligible for certification.
